THE ADVENTURES OF TINTIN

THE CALCULUS AFFAIR

MAGNET

THE CALCULUS AFFAIR

So much for your peace and quiet, Captain! Look over there. There's a big storm brewing.

Yes, it's high time we got back to the house.

Well, we're home again... and none too soon, either!

RRRIING
The telephone, Nestor.

Hello?... No Madam, I am not Mr. Cutts the butcher!... No, Madam... NO, Madam! ...Fiddle-de-dee, Madam!

...That's at least the twentieth time...

Quite so, Nestor. But one must always keep one's temper... especially with a lady... And besides, Nestor, you should never telephone during a storm: it is extremely dangerous.

That's that. And now, my friend, I think I'll just have a quiet drink, if you don't mind.

Blistering barnacles! That flash of lightning wasn't far away. In fact, I...

The funny thing is, that happened AFTER the clap of thunder.

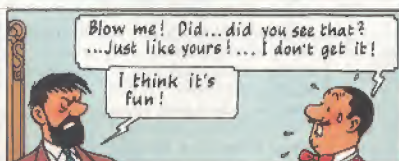

Hello?... What?... Lamb chops?... No, Madam, I am not Mr. Cutts the butcher! And what's more Madam, it is highly dangerous to telephone during a storm. You should know better! And the best of luck, Madam!

They came from outside.

There's someone coming... Oh, it's Professor Calculus, on the way back from his laboratory.

Did you hear those shots?

No, it's over now. The rain has stopped.

Professor, just look at your hat! Excuse me...

Look! A bullet has gone right through it!

Oh! See!... a hole!

I can't understand it at all. The moths never used to make such big holes as these.

Quick, Captain. Let's have a look round the park.

Right. Just let me fetch a torch, and I'll be with you.

Calculus certainly came along this path...

Captain! Snowy's picked up a scent. Come on, let's follow him.

Oh! Look there!

Woah!

Blistering barnacles! Do you think he's...

No; he's alive. His heart's beating... faintly...

We must send for the police at once.

You stay here while I go and telephone.

Blistering barnacles, what an evening! What an evening!

Oh, sir!... Sir! Something terrible's happened!

In heaven's name, what's the matter now?

Blistering barnacles! Come out of there, or I'll shoot!

Mercy! Have pity! Please don't kill me! I wouldn't harm a fly... I'm just a simple fellow...

Me?... I... I was hiding.

Somebody tried to murder me! I was walking towards my car... then suddenly: Bang! Bang!... So I said to myself, I said, "Jolyon, someone's trying to kill you..."

Wait... I can hear a car. It must be the police.

Are you the one who telephoned?... Good. The doctor and the ambulance are just behind us. Where is the casualty?

Here I am, Mr. Inspector... Jolyon Wagg... That's me...

You've been shot?

Me?
No.

But didn't you report that you'd found a wounded man?

Well, we did, but now he's vanished.

Then why were you pretending to be the victim?

But I am, Mr. Inspector; I'm the victim of an attack; I was shot at. So I said to myself, "Jolyon," I said...

They weren't firing at him, sergeant, but the shots must have whistled past him. In fact one went through Calculus's hat.

And who, pray, is Calculus?

Calculus? He's a friend of mine. He came back to the hole with a house in his hat... No, I mean... Anyway, Tintin told me...

And who is Tintin?

Tintin? But this is Tintin! Here...

Hey, now where's he gone?

Go on Snowy! Seek it out!

The wounded man got away through this hole in the hedge.

You've lost the scent, eh Snowy? I can guess why.

He was picked up by a car waiting here for him. There's nothing to be done. Come on, let's go back to the others.

... You mean the glass just broke by itself?

By itself, yes sergeant! And then...

Where have you sprung from?

Snowy picked up a scent. But it didn't lead anywhere.

There's nothing more we can do here. We'd better go back to the house; we can talk things over more easily there.

Yes, this case looks a hopeless muddle to me.

Next morning...

...TIN... BLOP... BLUB... PLOP

blub... blub... blub...

Why? What's up, Captain?

There... in the... Blub...

Wait a minute. Rinse your mouth out first. I'll bring you a glass of water.

Hey, Snowy, be quiet. What are you howling for?

CLING

You... you... blub... you see! We're, we're bewitched, I tell you... We're bewitched!

And an hour later

Blistering barnacles, I don't know about you Tintin, but all this carry-on is beginning to get on my nerves.

Yes, ever since yesterday there's been a strange feeling about the house.

YOW-OW-OW... YOW-OW-OOOW..

Let's go and see. That sounded like a smash on the road.

I... I don't know how it happened. I was driving along as usual... Suddenly, just as I passed your gate, crash! bang!... There was a terrible noise... and look what happened... It's got me beat...

Well, what do you make of it? It's exactly what happened to that creature, Jolyon Wagg. It's fantastic.

Look out!

Road-hog!... Steam-roller!... Bully!...
Dipsomaniac!... Nitwit!

Thomson and Thompson!!

Yes, it's us. Hello... The local police have told us all about that business last night. So we're here to investigate.

To be precise:
we're here

At the right moment, too!

Just take a look here. This good fellow was driving quietly along past the front of the house when, CRACK... You see what happened?... What do you make of it?

The whole thing began last night...

Why, here comes our friend Calculus.

Hello, Cuthbert. Are you going away?

No, no. I'm just going away.

I'm flying to Geneva, where I'm taking part in a congress on nuclear physics.

To Geneva?... But you never mentioned it to me before.

No, not for very long; only two or three days. I must go now; I've just got time to catch the 11:42 train. Goodbye.

Well, that's one person who's quite unconcerned by all this business.

Yes, but somehow he seems rather more preoccupied than usual.

Look out! Here he comes! Get the chloroform ready.

Just look at that horde of rubber-necks! They can hardly wait to see the rest of my windows smashed to bits!

No doubt. But somehow I think they are going to be disappointed.

What do you mean?

It's just a thought... By the way, I know Calculus hates anyone going into his laboratory, but I'd rather like to have a look round in there. Have you got his key?

Yes... but what's the idea!

Well, I've been thinking about this business, and one thing struck me; the glass-breaking only occurred when Calculus was out; or, to be more accurate, when he was in his laboratory. And since he left for Geneva yesterday, nothing more has happened.

In a nutshell, you suggest our friend Cuthbert's responsible for all those incidents? But that's ridiculous!

I'm not suggesting anything, Captain. I'm simply trying to work it out.

I say, Captain, can you smell anything?

Sniff... Sniff...

It's just... sniff... tobacco, that's all.

Yes, but Calculus doesn't smoke.

B blistering barnacles, that's quite right!

Ha! ha! ha! ha!... Fooled you properly that time, didn't I, my hearties?

I... You... Billions of blue blistering barnacles! ... I'll...
Ha! ha!..."Hands Up!"... the old gag never fails!

Now then, this'll cheer you up: I've brought your insurance proposal.

I say Captain, look what's written here in pencil, on this cigarette packet.
What is it?

Гостиница
Geneva
Hotel Cornavin
By thunder, that's the hotel in Geneva where Cuthbert usually stays.
Exactly.

Captain, something tells me the Professor's in danger there in Geneva. I'm going over to join him.
Cursh it! Whereshat paper got itself to?

And I suppose you think I'll let you go alone. Nonsense! I'm coming with you!
Right.
Here it is!

Come on! To Geneva!

And the same day...

Hello... Hotel Cornavin?... Herr Szhrinkhoff, please... Thank you... Hello, Stefan?... Yes, it's me... Look, you'd better get a move on. His friends have just left by air for Geneva.

3.30 p.m., at Cointrin Airport, Geneva...

O.K., I get it: if they're here, we buzz off to Geneva and wait for them at Cornavin Station, at the Swissair bus terminal.

Three-quarters of an hour later, at Cornavin Station...

Here they come... You barge into them and push them around; they'll get angry, there'll be a fight... All to gain time...

Bah! Foiled! A gendarme...

Ah, there's a gendarme. We'll ask him.

Hotel Cornavin? You'll find it just across the road.

Thank you.

Is Professor Calculus staying here, please?

Professor Calculus? Yes, sir. His key is not on the board, so he must be in his room.

Phew, what a relief! Please tell him Captain Haddock and Tintin are here.

Certainly, sir.

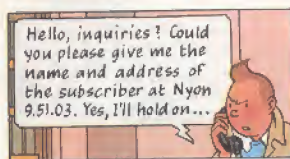

What's up?

A quarter of an hour later...

To sum up. Last Thursday the first windows and glasses were broken.

And it's no joke. Imagine: you're holding a glass in your hand and suddenly...

At the Hotel Cornavin, we had a row with a strange man. On the way from Geneva, a black Citroen tipped us into the lake.

We had a drink there, all right! But not as good as your excellent Swiss wine!

Finally, just near here, the same black Citroen tried to run us down, and missed by inches. A few minutes later, we found you in your cellar.

Er... That coal dust made me dreadfully thirsty. ... What about you?

As for the packet of cigarettes, do you know this brand?

The brand that Boris smokes!

OOOH!

A few minutes later ...

DING-GLING
GLING-GLING

In you go!

Here we are!

Gentlemen, the statements you made yesterday have been checked and confirmed. You will be released immediately. I must apologise for our mistake.

That's quite all right, Mr. Magistrate. None of this would have happened if our credentials hadn't been stolen... with our luggage.

We're in Swiss disguise while we're searching for our friends Tintin and Haddock. We have important news for them.

You'll find them in the hospital, quite near here.

A little later...

Tintin and Captain Haddock? I'll take you to their room. You're just in time. They're getting ready to leave.

I say, how clean these hospitals are. Just look at the shine on the floors!

... Yes, important news. We caught him... the man in the park who was wounded, then vanished. He's Syldavian. But we can't get another thing out of him. He swears he was there "quite by chance".

Quite by chance... I'll bet he was. Thanks all the same. I'm terribly sorry you slipped up... We must be off to the police station. Goodbye for now.

... This is how I see it. Calculus had perfected an ultra-sonic instrument, capable of destroying glass from a distance, glass and - who knows? whole buildings, tanks, ships... In short, a terrible weapon... In a letter to Topolino, Cuthbert described his work.

This letter was discovered by Topolino's servant, a Bordurian called Boris, who tipped off his country's secret service. But the Syldavian espionage got wind of the invention too, and sent an agent to Marlinspike. He stumbled upon his Bordurian rival, who shot him.

So far so good. Then Calculus arrives in Geneva, but we are close behind. And since we make life difficult for spies and kidnappers, they try to eliminate us. Right... The first thing is to find Calculus.

But where can he be?... Who knows what they have done with poor Cuthbert?

Blue blistering barnacles!... A lighted cigarette! The fat-headed fire-raisers!

Nit-witted ninepins! Bash-bazouks! A "C.D." plate, so do as you like! Certified Diplodomases, that's what you are!

OH!...

Look at this cigarette, Captain. The same brand... once again!

Thundering typhoons, you're right.

... It was a C.D. car... Diplomatic Corps. That means from an embassy, and most probably the Bordurian Embassy... We must find out where that is. A post office directory will tell us. We'd better go back to Nyon.

There... Bordurian Embassy, "Les Cygnes", Rolle.

Rolle... That's a few miles from Nyon.

Well then, this afternoon we'll reconnoitre. We'll go out to Rolle and spy out the land; and tonight, Captain, we'll go into action!

That night...

Blood-suckers!
PCHH
PCHH

Man-eating pests!
PCHH
PCHH

Lucky I brought this along!

Don't make a sound Captain, we're nearly there

Wait, just a few more shots!

Here comes an absolute whopper! Listen to the din!

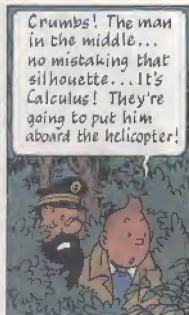

OH!... Sorry!

He's landing on the lawn... Moor the boat and we'll have a look.

Look over there; someone's coming.

Crumbs! The man in the middle... no mistaking that silhouette... It's Calculus! They're going to put him aboard the helicopter!

Good heavens! What's happening?

Someone's trying to rescue Calculus! Quick, Captain, let's give them a hand!

I'm with you! Come on!

... But how can we tell friends from enemies?

Go for the ugliest ... That won't be difficult - you'll see.

Now which has the ugliest mug? It looks about Fifty-fifty...

Tintin! Is it really you? I can't believe my eyes!

It's the thing who knocked me out in Calculus's laboratory, back at Marlinspike... the man with the cigarettes!

Quick, Captain, come on!

Rapp! ... Noh dzem bähst!

Gangsters!... Anacolutions!
... Bashi-bazouks!

We'd better not hang around here, Captain; the others will be back.

We must get under cover, quickly.

There they are. Let's get back to the lawn.

By the whiskers of Kürvi-Tasch!
Those accursed Syldavians have got away with the Professor!

Only one thing to do:
go after them in the helicopter...

Good idea!

We're overhauling them fast.
You can see their wake clearly.

It's them all right, heading towards France!

Blistering barnacles!
Another mosquito, inside this goldfish-bowl!

By the Sceptre of Ottokar! Their helicopter's on our tail!

OH! You monster!
Just you wait...
Where's my spray-gun?

PSCHH

HUKKH - HUKKH - HUKKH

Go on Vladimir, they're within range.

The gangsters! Blistering barnacles, they're shooting at us!

Quick let's climb a bit higher!

Crumbs! How shall we... Ah! The radio! Captain, the radio. There beside you.

Hello, hello!... S.O.S!... S.O.S!... Hello! Police! Calling the police!... Hello, police!... Hello!...

Hello, this is SB31 answering... I am an amateur... I am receiving you loud and clear... Please identify yourself.

Hooray! An answer!

Hello SB31... Hello SB31... This is Captain Haddock and I...

What?... No, it's not possible!... Ha! ha! ha! That's a good one!... Ha! ha! It's Captain Haddock!

This is Jolyon Wagg of the Rock Bottom Insurance... Blow me! Fancy meeting you again! So you're another radio-amateur? Ha! ha! ha! That takes the biscuit, as my Uncle Anatole used to say...

Listen, Mr. Wagg. You must warn the police at once. We're in a helicopter flying over the lake of Geneva, and we're following a motor-boat with Calculus in it. He's been kidnapped...

Ha! ha! ha! You old humbug, you! But you can't catch Jolyon Wagg that easy!... You can't teach your grandmother to suck eggs, you know! By the way, what about your insurance?

Blistering barnacles, shut up about your insurance!... I'm not joking... You must get in touch with both the French and Swiss police... Those things must be arrested!

Ha! ha! ha! While I'm about it, would you like me to ring up the Admiralty and get them to send the Home Fleet?... Get away, Haddock!

You ectoplasm, you! Will you or will you not warn the police? And get a move on! The boat's just reached the shore... I can't see it any more; it's hidden by trees... What are they doing? Oh, headlights! I see; they're putting Calculus into a car...

There they go... The boat's just put out again... Thundering typhoons!

You should be a radio-commentator! Anyone'd think it was real! Ha! ha!

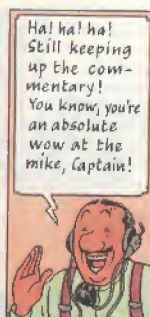

Hello, Wagg, hello! We're going after the car now... Listen, I'll buy all the policies you like, but for heaven's sake warn the police!

Dooh!... Look out, over there... LOOK OUT!!

Thundering typhoons!
They must have a Jack
Brabham at the wheel!

That's that. They've slipped through our fingers... And Calculus with them.

Now what'll
we do?

First we'd better clear the road, in case of accidents.

Then continue on foot... and try to hitch-hike.

Ah! A car...
Let's thumb
a lift.

Blackguards!... Egoists!... Nitwits!...
Troglodytes!... Polygraphs!...

It's incredible what cads some drivers are. They see you like that, all alone on the road, and whoosh!... they sweep past! Blistering barnacles, what times we live in!

Hey, here comes another.

Beasts!... Auto-
crats!... Profiteers!
... Fat faces! ...
Tramps!...

There ought to be a law to make those infernal mileage-merchants stop when people signal.

Ah, another. Let's try again.

Bah, they won't stop.
You'll see.

I say, they've stopped.

Oh well, we needn't despair.
There are still a few gentlemen left in the world.

Tintin!... Wait!... STOP!...

Quick! Into the wood...

Hurry!... Get down:
like me.

Why in that particular puddle?

SPLASH

I say, Captain, what are you doing?

Blistering barnacles, get down! They'll start shooting any moment! Didn't you recognise the black Citroën?

The black Citroën?... No, Captain, you've got it wrong. It was black all right, but it had a French number plate; the other one was Swiss.

Are... are you quite sure?

Absolutely certain. Come on, perhaps they're still there.

But I promise you, my pet, there were two people in the road who signalled to me.

And I say, Jules, that it's time you went to the oculist and ordered stronger glasses.

And on top of it all, you're soaked ...

Oh, the sun will soon dry me off.

Hmm! I wouldn't count on it.

If only we had an umbrella!

An umbrella? Captain, what idiots we are. Look!

... Yes, and meanwhile poor Calculus is being whisked further and further away!

At last! There's a tobacconist. I'm going to buy an ounce or two.

You go on. I won't be a minute.

Still!

BANG!

HELP!

Oh goodness! How awful! Poor Captain! What a ghastly thing to happen!

Bandit!... Anthropophagus!... Steam-roller!... Highwayman!... Travelling at that speed! I suppose you want to break the sound-barrier? You thundering misguided missile, you!

Bashi-bazouk!... Ectoplasm!

Mamma mia! It was you! ... Basta!... And now why you spitta all over my window?

Presto! Window-wash!

Eccola!

Excuse me, sir, but could you please help us? We're chasing some car-bandits ... they've kidnapped one of our friends, Professor Calculus, and ...

Madonna!... Unobandito... we chase? Va bene! You get in my car...

You in good?

O.K.

BRRROOM

Avanti!

Billions of blue blistering barnacles! Must you do that? Can't you start off like other people?

Scusi!

I show you... Italian car, Italian driver, the best in the world, no! Avanti! Prestissimo! We catch him, il povero Professore!

Perhaps we'd better explain. Our friend Calculus has an invention which secret agents from a foreign power are trying to steal. That is why they kidnapped Calculus.

But a rival gang, probably secret agents from another country, grabbed our friend.

Hitch-hikers! Blistering barnacles, there ought to be a law against them!

As I was saying, this second gang snatched our friend from the first lot. We...er... Don't you think we'd better slow down?

Mamma mia!... Whatta is happening? This noise is peculiare. Diavolo! I think now: uno pistone?... Una valvola?

It... it... it's nothing... It... it... it's my... my t-t-teeth... ch-ch-ch-ch-chattering...

Er... I believe the Captain thinks that you're flying too low...

Ten thousand thundering typhoons! Must you drive like a lun-atic?

There it is! That car there! The Chrysler that's just gone through the village.

Does that satisfy you, Mr. Sherlock Holmes? Or would you like to dismantle my carburettor? No? In that case, get out of the road and let me pass. You've wasted enough of my time already.

Mamma mia! You fool me nicely, yes?... You tella me the big fib, yes? You just wanta to make hitch-hike... and me stupido who believes you! Madonna, how you fool me! Va bene! Now you walk. Addio!

What can have happened? Did we follow the wrong car?... Or did Calculus stay in the motor-boat?

GREAT SNAKES!

Hey, what's the matter? Now what's burning you up?

YEOW!

What idiots we are! Under the back seat!

Why?... What? Which back seat?

It was rather high up... That's where they've hidden poor Calculus! We let ourselves be hoodwinked like a couple of kids. Come on!

Old Calculus has certainly led us a pretty dance around the countryside!

That aeroplane looks as if it's landing. Is there an airfield near here? If that's the case, we're saved.

Come on, let's take this foot-path. When we get to the airfield we'll ask if there's a plane available.

What's all this?... No airfield?... It's come down in a meadow.

Look! There, behind those trees!

The Chrysler!!

There's Calculus! They're putting him aboard the plane. Quick Captain!

By St.Vladimir! There are those madmen again!

Quick, Stanislas, climb aboard. And start up the engine, Boldoff; hurry! Too bad about the car: we'll abandon it.

Step on it, Boldoff!

Faster! Faster!

What are you waiting for? Take off!

Ah! That's it!

At last! Calculus is ours!

Woah! Woah!

WOOAH!

YOW! OW! OW!

HELP! HELP!

SAVE ME!

Great snakes!
Poor Captain!

Hurry, blistering barnacles! Help me!

A few minutes later...

Thundering typhoons,
you were right! The back seat is hollow. The pirates!
That's where they hid him!

Listen Captain, we mustn't waste time.
It was a Syldevian aircraft: we'll go back to Geneva and take the first plane for Syldevia.

Right!

Next morning in Geneva...

While you buy the tickets
I'll get some papers. Then I'll put a call through to Marlinspike ...

Two seats for Klow, sir? Certainly. The plane leaves from Cointrin in two hours' time.

In an official note the Syldavian Ministry of Foreign Affairs has protested vigorously against "unprovoked aggression by the Bordurian Air Force towards an unarmed Great snakes! This alters everything. I bet that's the plane Calculus was in. Now he's fallen into Bordurian hands again. They never give up, do they?

I'm afraid it's the truth, sir. The Professor's laboratory has been stripped... Yes, the apparatus too, sir... Absolutely everything... Quite so, last night. Yes, sir, the police came this morning.

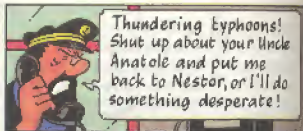

Did they find any clues?
... You... Hello?
... What did you say, Nestor?

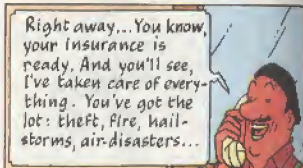

No, it's me, Wagg.
... Don't worry, old boy; it's better than a slap in the eye with a wet kipper, as my Uncle Anatole used to say. Besides...

Thundering typhoons! Shut up about your Uncle Anatole and put me back to Nestor, or I'll do something desperate!

Right away... You know, your insurance is ready. And you'll see, I've taken care of everything. You've got the lot: theft, fire, hailstorms, air-disasters...

Wagg! Billions of bilious blue blistering barnacles! I... hello!
... hello!... HELLO!

Now I've been cut off!...

I say, what's the matter now?

What's the matter? It's Calculus's laboratory at Marlinspike! Rifled! emptied! ransacked! Those gangsters have taken all his apparatus...

And when I think they're probably in league with those two Patagonian savages... Hello, they've weighed anchor.

So they have: they've gone.

Excuse me, sir!... Sir!... Sir!...

Someone's just telephoned: we have two vacant seats on the plane for Szohád... but the coach leaves in five minutes. Will that be...

Thanks, we'll take them.

A few minutes later...

Bon voyage, gentlemen. We're only too delighted to give you our seats...

You're the last, sir. We're just off now.

Right away, François.

Well done Snowy!
He's been to fetch
Calculus's umbrella.

Crumbs! This doesn't belong to Calculus, Snowy! Where in the world did you pinch this from?

Thundering typhoons! Quick,
Tintin, hand me that broly.

Hey, I think you've lost your umbrella!
Here it is.

Hello, what's that on my nose?

Oh, it's the bit of sticking-plaster.

It's off now ...

Thundering...

... typhoons!

Pardon me, but you have something on your hat.

A bit of sticking-plaster.

Now I wonder where that came from?

And it's stuck!

Oh, bother it!

Ah, it's gone.

Well, that's got rid of that!

At Cointin Airport, 1.40pm.

Here we go, on our way to Szohôd... I only hope we find poor Calculus there.

Billions of bilious blue blistering barnacles!

Just look at this confounded sticking-plaster! How did it get itself on to my cap? It's black magic, I tell you!

Meanwhile, in Geneva...

Hello, operator, I want Szohôd 322.18... Yes, Szohôd... What? A delay? But it's urgent. I... Good. Try and hurry things along.

Hello?... Hello?... Yes, I can hear you. CRACKLE... FRRT... Hello, Szohôd?... Hello, I... FRRT... Hello?

Hello, airport police here... Amâih Kürvi-Tasch, sir! The plane from Geneva? It's just in... What?... What names?

That's a relief, I can tell you. I thought they might have had warning of our arrival.

SZTÖPP!

You Captain Haddock? And you Tintin?... You come please. My officer want talk with you.

What? Who is this officer of yours?

Captain, wait. You've got something...

Ah, Captain, this is a great privilege for us. We in Borduria salute you, hero of that glorious interplanetary flight. ... Amañ!

And you too, Mänhir Tintin. I am proud to shake the hand which....er... First set foot on the Moon. I salute you. Amañ!

You...you're too kind.

The ancient traditions of Bodurlan hospitality demand that we ensure your absolute comfort and safety.

Szping! What is this?

As I was saying: your safety...Two interpreters will therefore accompany you during your stay here. They will take you wherever you may wish to go... and at whatever time.

These gentlemen, Krönick and Klümsi, are entirely at your service... They will take you to the Hotel Szñör, where rooms are booked for you. I wish you a pleasant stay... Amañ!

Thanks... very much.

Ten minutes later, in Szñör...

...And this is Kúrvi-Tasch Platz. Your hotel is just round the corner.

Oh!... Quick!... Hide! Hide!

BIANCA CASTAFIORE !!!

Did you see? That was Signora Bianca Castafiore, the Milanese nightingale. She's singing at the Szoëd Opera. If you wish, we will go to hear her one evening: she is sublime as Marguerite, in "Faust".

Oh yes...

Here are the keys. We will escort you to your rooms.

This is yours, Mänhir Captain. I hope you will be comfortable.

Yours is a little further down: unfortunately there were no adjoining rooms.

Here you are, Mänhir Tintin. We will come and fetch you for dinner, in an hour. If you need us before then, don't hesitate to ring: we're entirely at your service.

Thank you, gentlemen.

We're prisoners all right, Snowy, and no mistake about it. The fact that it's a gilded cage doesn't make any difference.

Golly! The lap of luxury!

RRING! RRING!

Hello?... Oh, it's you, Captain ... What?

Blistering barnacles, I said that at the first opportunity we'll ditch those two coleoptera! That's agreed, isn't it?

I...er... Oh yes. You're referring to those two butterflies you caught by the lake, in Geneva. But those aren't coleoptera, Captain, they're lepidoptera.

What are you jabbering about? Lepidoptera? Lepidoptera to you, too! Hello? ...

Crums! How can I make him understand that our telephone is bound to be tapped!

RRING! RRING!

Hello?... Yes... Yes... We were cut off, I... er... Don't worry about the butterflies, Captain ...

Let's talk about the simply wonderful hospitality of this exquisite country. What good taste! What tact! And then their... um... their courtesy. And above all their... how shall I put it? their friendliness. Friendliness which is entirely... er... friendly.... Um...

You... But... What... Let... But... Look here... I... Blister... Thunder...

Keep on recording. This could be interesting.

Ten thousand thundering typhoons!... Now I'm going to chuck you out of the window!

What?... No, blistering parnacles! It's that thundering bit of sticking plaster. It's following me about!

Well, good luck. I'll leave you to sort things out together. But don't forget, we go down to dinner in an hour.

An hour later...

Captain, I propose we crack a bottle of champagne in honour of these gentlemen.

Champagne?! Champagne for this gang? ...

Oh, poor Captain! It must be your rheumatism. Well, there's nothing like champagne for curing that. Will you call the wine-waiter?

Gentlemen, a toast to Borduria and her glorious ruler, Marshal Kürvi-Tasch!

Ama'ih Kürvi-Tasch!

Ama'ih Kürvi-Tasch!

OWW!

An hour later...

I say, they're having quite a party at table seven. That's their fourth bottle!

Ha! ha! I'm no fool!... You want to make us tight... To find out where... hic... Professor Calculus is... Hic... But you won't learn a thing. We'll shut up like trams... No, like prams... like lambs... no, like clams...

Don't let's worry about Calculus. He'll have to shift for himself.

That's right! Hic... Don't let's worry. Anyway... hic... I don't know anything. Honestly... It's Sponsz... hic... the Chief of the "ZEP"... our secret pol... hic... he's the only one who knows... And Calculus...

Good... good. Let's forget silly old Calculus. It's time for bed.

Will you take us right up to our rooms?

Hic...

I... hic... I'll stay in the corridor.

Fine... Good idea!

O.K. Mine's locked in your room.

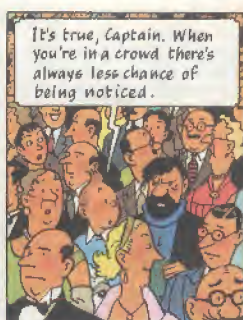

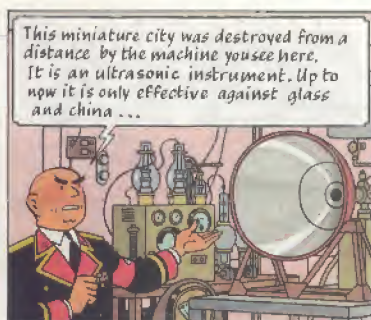

And mine in yours.

THUMP THUMP THUMP THUMP

Just a minute, Signora!... The Colonel... Listen, I'll explain everything later... but at all costs he mustn't find us here!

Dio!... What shall we do?

Irma, wait a moment!... Quick! Hide in my wardrobe, behind this curtain.

There... Show the Colonel in, Irma! ♪ ...

I am deeply honoured, Ma'am to... to find myself in the presence of the celebrated singer who... er... who...

Fie, Colonel! You make me blush!

But do please sit down.

You are too kind...

Oh, forgive me!... I've sat on something... It's a naval officer's cap...

Blistering barnacles! My cap!

I... Oh yes!... Er... it belongs to the tenor who sings in "Madame Butterfly"... He forgot it yesterday... But do take off your coat, Colonel.

With pleasure, Ma'am.

Take the Colonel's coat, please, Irma! ♪ ...

Now Irma, bring the champagne... It's an old habit of mine, Colonel: champagne after each performance. You'll take a glass with me?

I fear I intrude, Ma'am.

Not at all, not at all. Come, Colonel, make yourself useful... You may open the bottle.

But of course, Ma'am. Your wish is my command.

RAT TAT TAT

Come in.

Oh! Excuse me, Colonel... I... We were ordered to search the Opera House from top to bottom... For those two foreigners...

Is that so?

I suppose you think you'll find them in here, you dunderheaded nitwits! Go on, get out! About turn, before I explode!

POP

Please excuse those num-skulls, Ma'am. They're hunting for two spies...

Oh, do tell me about them, Colonel, I adore spy-stories!... Your health, Colonel.

Spies! Us! Barefaced liar

Your health, Ma'am... Well, it's this way: our secret service have managed to... to "invite" to Borduria a foreign professor, originator of a sensational discovery. It concerns a secret weapon. Once this has been perfected, it will give us world supremacy.

Oh, but that's simply wonderful!

Yes, but the perfecting of it depends upon the professor. And up till now he refuses to give us his detail drawings. His reason, he doesn't want his invention used for warlike purposes... I ask you!

These Professors! Always wanting the moon!

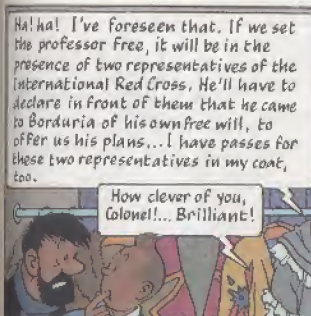

Ha! ha! You don't know how true that is! But just now he's on the earth! Between ourselves, he's in the fortress of Bakhine. And by the whiskers of Kürvi-Tasch, he'll stay there till he decides to give up the plans!

Oh, I'm sure he will in the end.

I hope so, for his sake! Anyway, I have a signed order for his release in my coat pocket. Tomorrow he'll have to choose: either he gives up his plans, or he'll never be heard of again.

And supposing he does give up his plans, Colonel. What happens when he gets home, and tells all?

Ha! ha! I've foreseen that. If we set the professor free, it will be in the presence of two representatives of the International Red Cross. He'll have to declare in front of them that he came to Borduria of his own free will, to offer us his plans... I have passes for these two representatives in my coat, too.

How clever of you, Colonel!... Brilliant!

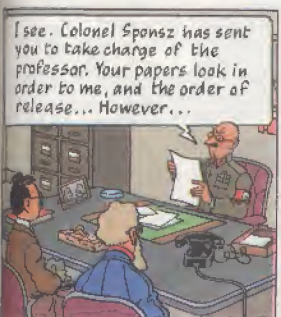

Oh, just part of my job, Ma'am... But I am gossiping, and time passes... If I may dare to presume... My wife is giving a small party for some friends tonight... and it would give us much pleasure if you would agree to come, just as you are, and sing for us.

But of course... Irma... The Colonel's coat please, and mine.

Next morning, at the fortress of Bakhine...

I see. Colonel Spensz has sent you to take charge of the professor. Your papers look in order to me, and the order of release... However...

... Better safe than sorry. I'd better check that everything's all right. Will you excuse me?... But... but of course!

D-d-do!

Hello, ZEP?... This is the commandant at Bakhine, Major Kardouk. Would you put me through to Colonel Spensz?

Hello?... What?... Oh, he's not in yet... Who is that?... His secretary?... In that case, perhaps you can help me...

Oh yes. Two representatives from the International Red Cross... Their passes? Quite all right, Major. I made them out myself. And the order for release? Yes, Major, that's quite all right too; the colonel signed it yesterday morning. Yes. Amain!

Well, gentlemen, everything's perfectly in order. I'll send for Professor Calculus.

A moment later...

Ah! the joy... ♪ popom-pom... ♪ pom-pom... pom!

Here comes the chief. He sounds in good form this morning.

Amain! Kavitch... What's the news?... Any trace of Calculus's Friends?

Nothing at all, Colonel. Not a sign of them.

That's tiresome... Very tiresome. I wonder where those two artful dodgers managed to hide... Nothing else, besides that?

Nothing at all, sir.

Oh yes... Major Kardouk rang up.

Kardouk? That old bore! And what did he want this time?

He wanted to know if the order you signed releasing Professor Calculus was official.

By the whiskers of Kürvi-Tasch! When a document bears my signature, is it or is it not official?

Yes, Colonel. That's exactly what I told him, sir...

You... you did say the order releasing Professor Calculus?

Why... yes, Colonel...

The papers!... It's treason!... They've been stolen!
